

INT. UNDERGROUND BOMB SHELTER LABORATORY - DAY

Several scientists are reviving the three generals from their 35-year coma.

SCIENTIST #1

Their heart monitors are showing abnormal slow pumps. We need to hurry this process before it's too late.

SCIENTIST #2

I am trying, something is wrong with their blood pressure.

SCIENTIST #1

The broken valve is decreasing oxygen too quickly.

SCIENTIST #2

The generals cannot survive a second longer.

Scientist #1 types several commands into a program then twists a cable that releases fog-like smoke.

SCIENTIST #1

I pray this does it.

SCIENTIST #2

It looks like it. The pressure is stabilizing.

Both scientists look relieved as they take deep breaths.

SCIENTIST #1

Thank you GOD. That was too close.

Both scientists hug each other in relief. The U.S. President enters the laboratory.

U.S. PRESIDENT

Great job scientists.

SCIENTIST #2

Thank you Mr. President, I couldn't have done it without my colleague.

SCIENTIST #1

God works in mysterious ways.

Both scientists shake the U.S. President's hands in relief again.

*ACTOR'S NOTES